Man who died in his shower is found 6 months later . . .

with the water still running!

By IRWIN FISHER

A man who died in the shower stayed there until cops found him crumpled in a heap under the running water — six mind-blowing months later!

"I don't mean to sound disrespectful but the man looked like a big blue prune," Police Lt. Raymond Jubert told newsmen in Toulouse, France.

"We don't suspect foul play because he had a history of heart problems and almost certainly had a heart attack.

"If the utility company hadn't noticed that his water and gas bills were unpaid and sky high we would never have found him.

"The man's waterlogged body ultimately would have decomposed completely and washed down the shower drain."

The bizarre death of 40-year-old Bernard Seydel came as a shock to his neighbors, who noted that he traveled extensively and was often out of town.

"His car was in the driveway but it never dawned on me that he could be in his house," said Martha Dejour, who lived next door to the dead man.

"It gives me the creeps just to think about it. I didn't even see the body and I'm still having terrible nightmares about it."

Lt. Jubert agreed that Seydel's body was "a ghastly sight."

"There was a large hole in his chest where the water from the shower was hitting it and his flesh was grayish-blue and shriveled all over," he said.

"It's definitely not something I like to think about. But frankly, it's something I will never, ever forget — not in this lifetime, anyway!"

In fact, a survey of police officers in Toulouse indicated that the circumstances surrounding Seydel's death were the strangest they had ever heard of.

Running a distant second was the case of a woman who slipped and fell while mopping her kitchen floor — and drowned in a bucket of cleaning water.

Phantom hitchhiker warns motorists of DOOMSDAY — then vanishes into thin air

ARTIST'S conception of the phantom hitchhiker, as described by

By PETE COOKE

A phantom hitchhiker that first shocked drivers in America by miraculously disappearing from speeding vehicles that had given him a lift has been seen in Germany, where the ghostly figure is predicting Doomsday in 1994.

The police in Rosenheim, West Germany, told The NEWS that they are frantically investigating a series of reports from motorists who had been unnerved by the ghostly hitchhiker's unexplainable disappearance from their moving cars.

Old man wears a trenchcoat and claims the world will end in 1994!

But police spokesman Inspector Harald Grella said it was the phantom's first reported appearance in Rosenheim that most concerned authorities and left residents in a panic.

"A woman, driving her car on the Munich-Salzburg highway, stopped to pick up an old man who was hitchhiking," Inspector Grella said.

"The woman is terrified and insists that we keep her name secret, but she is 30 years old, a clerk in an office and we have absolutely no reason to doubt her. She said the ghost predicted that the world will end in 1994."

The first reports of the phantom hitchhiker appeared when startled motorists said they had encountered the weary old man, wearing a trenchcoat and battered hat, on a lonely stretch of highway.

The rattled drivers said the hitchhiker told them about Doomsday before vanishing from their moving vehicles.

Inspector Grella said that in all of the reported encounters in Germany, the phantom was described as a wretched old man in a crumpled hat and trenchcoat.

"When the hitchhiker got into the woman's car on the Munich highway, she told him that he must fasten his seat belt," Inspector Grella said.

"After they had driven a short time he turned to her and said, 'Why? It doesn't matter. The world will end in 1994.'

"The woman thought that her passenger was making some sort of joke," the inspector continued. "But suddenly the man vanished."

Inspector Grella said the terrified woman immediately drove to the police station in Rosenheim.

Within a week of the first report the Rosenheim police received six other accounts from terrified drivers who said the phantom hitchhiker predicted Doomsday in 1994, then vanished.

The police said an extensive manhunt was launched to find the mysterious hitchhiker, but all efforts by authorities to locate the mysterious phantom had failed.

"We are looking for this person or archangel, but his tendency to suddenly vanish is complicating the search," the police spokesman said.

Inspector Grella added that church leaders were struggling to hold down the rising level of panic that is quickly spreading through all of West Germany.

Tiny Thumbelina

— little twin will never get any bigger!

Amber and Joshua Buck are twins, but no one could tell that by looking at them — because Joshua is a hefty 2-year-old toddler and Amber is still the size of an infant.

By SUSAN JAMISON

The bizarre difference in their size is caused by Amber's rare disease, a genetic bone disorder called achondroplasia. The real-life tiny Thumbelina suffers from stunted growth in the bones of her arms, legs and chest and even a common cold could kill her.

"She will never grow," said the tragic tot's mother, Diane, 28. "Right now she weighs 11 pounds although she's 2."

Her healthy twin Joshua weighs more than three times as much as Amber.

Doctors told Diane and her husband Peter about Amber's condition when the little girl was born, but the baby seemed completely normal until she was about 7 months old. Then she came down with a terrible chest infection — and the ailment nearly snuffed out her life.

By the time she was rushed to a hospital from their home in Arlesey, England, Amber was already unconscious. Doctors put her on a respirator and gave the Bucks little hope that she'd survive. But incredibly, the baby battled back to health.

Several months later, Amber was stricken with another infection. Once again the baby hovered between life and death — and then miraculously pulled through.

By this time Amber weighed only 8 pounds — while her healthy twin weighed three times that much.

So when both babies came down with yet another virus barely a month later, it was Amber who once again was on the verge of death.

"She suffered a respiratory arrest and her chances of surviving were nil," Diane said. "It was the weekend and we were told that if she improved by Sunday, doctors would continue the fight.

"Suddenly, on Sunday, she showed a slight improvement. It was the longest weekend of our lives."

Since that last terrible bout with infection, the plucky baby has been fine, although she must be connected to an oxygen supply to help her little lungs. She also must receive physical therapy every day to strengthen her limbs.

In spite of all the fears that she would die, Amber has survived her early months and now stands a good chance of leading a long life. Her parents are praying the toddler's remarkable progress will continue.

AMBER has room to box healthy twin brother Joshua, who is a shopping three times bigger than she is. Their loving mom Diane keeps a watchful eye on her precious family.

Angry mom moons teacher

The woman, Maria Serpanis of Salt Lake City, Utah, was angry because her son had been given after-school detention. She burst into his class on April 4, 1984, and started arguing with the boy's teacher.

When the teacher asked her to leave, she bent over and lifted her dress, showing him a full moon.

Mrs. Serpanis was charged with lewdness, but the Utah Court of Appeals found her not guilty — because she had neglected to pull down her panties and bra!

Weekends are more tiring than workdays

Most working Americans spend as much time doing chores on weekends that they're more pooped on Sunday night than they were when they left work on Friday, a new survey shows.

The typical adult spends 14 hours toiling on the weekend, according to the nationwide study conducted for Hilton Hotels.

The most common chores performed on weekends are housecleaning, cooking, tasks connected with their job, running errands and doing their grocery shopping.

Ninety percent of the 1,008 people surveyed said they were just as tired after a weekend as they were at the end of the workweek.

The researchers also found that:

- Those people with children spend 30 percent more time cooking and 52 percent more time doing laundry than those without children.
- Women put in 2½ hours more than men doing chores each weekend.
- For relaxation, men will spend more time on hobbies, exercise and visiting friends. Women spend more time on family activities, such as playing with the children and visiting relatives.

Man wakes up after a drunk night out and finds . . .

A BABOON IN HIS BED!

HARRY Boyd (left) woke to find a female baboon (shown in bed with him, brought home the night before by hapless Harry himself. Harry says heavy drinking caused him to kidnap the cuddly critter.

Hell-raising Harry Boyd got drunk as a skunk, paid a late-night visit to a local game park — and woke up the next morning with a lady baboon in his bed!

Peeved park bosses say Harry, 28, kidnapped the mild-mannered monkey named Amanda from a part of the park where baboons are allowed to roam free.

Hung-over Harry, on the other hand, says he doesn't know how he wound up sharing his bed with a jungle beast.

"I got slushed, and the next thing I knew I woke up with the ugliest-looking animal I've ever seen staring at me from the foot of the bed," the bleary-eyed electrician told reporters in Johannesburg, South Africa.

"I knew I had to be drunk to bring something like that home, because when I saw her sober I was scared to death of her.

"She started jumping up and down on the bed and shrieking at me, and I ran out of the room and slammed the door. My head was really spinning."

Beach-loving Harry's walk on the wild side began one night when he and his buddies went out to down a few at a Johannesburg bar.

"Harry got very drunk and started babbling about what an animal lover he was," recalled pal Pete Lewis.

"I know for a fact that Harry had never been an animal lover before. He's never had a pet in his life. But that night he thought they were wonderful.

"He wanted me to go out to that game park with him, but I didn't. And I told him if he did get in one of those animals would probably eat him.

"I figured he was just talking to hear himself talk anyway. He's always been pretty good at that."

But authorities say plastered Harry drove to the park outside Johannesburg later that night, cut a hole in a chain link fence to get inside and made off with genial Amanda.

"The man is very lucky," said a park supervisor. "Most of our baboons would have ripped him to shreds.

"Fortunately, Harry made friends with Amanda. She's been around people all her life and wouldn't harm a soul."

But hapless Harry wasn't so sure about that when he opened his bloodshot eyes the next morning and found himself sharing a bed with the 75-pound baboon.

"I was scared stiff," he recalled. "I ran out of there in record time, leaving my bedroom door wide open.

"I decided the only thing I could do was call the game park people, have them come out and get their monkey and take my memories.

"They came and got her and gave me a big hug like she was a member of the family. We then treated like a hero."

Now, Harry's primate playmate is safely back home and he's awaiting trial on charges of breaking and entering and theft.

"I'm going to plead temporary insanity," he said. "I'd have to be crazy to do what I did."

Weapons maker uses 'scratch and sniff' ads to sell rockets!

An American weapons manufacturer is running magazine ads that smell like cordite — the aroma that follows a rocket explosion!

The "scratch and sniff" ads, which carry the slogan "The Smell of Victory," trumpet Firebolte rockets made by BEI Defense Systems of Dallas.

BEI chief George Customacher has even bigger plans for the firm's next round of ads.

"I'm going to do 'The Sound of Victory' next," he said. "You're going to run your thumbnail across some kind of strip and hear explosions."

10-year-old's nervous habit leads to tragic end

Girl dies after eating her own hair!

By DALE BROWN

Stunned medical experts said little Mercedes Munoz's nervous habit of chewing on her hair led to an agonizing death — after an autopsy showed her stomach filled by a dense ball of hair.

The parents of the 10-year-old Spanish schoolgirl said she had been in the habit of pulling out her hair and eating it. Little Mercedes' nervous habit had gotten so bad that she had two bald patches on her head.

Pedro and Isabel Munoz told a coroner's inquest in Madrid that little Mercedes woke up screaming in pain at 2 a.m. on the day of her death.

"We found Mercedes screaming and we jumped out of bed to see what was wrong," Mrs. Munoz testified.

"She was in great agony. My husband ran to telephone our family doctor and I gave Mercedes an aspirin and a glass of water. Within a few minutes she seemed better."

Satisfied that Mercedes had gotten over her stomachache, Mrs. Munoz said she and her husband went back to bed as soon as their daughter had fallen to sleep again. They thought everything was fine.

The spunky sixth grader appeared to be in perfect health until 4 o'clock that afternoon when she suddenly collapsed.

"I rushed over and gave Mercedes artificial respiration," the heartbroken father told the coroner's inquest. "Then I called for an ambulance. The paramedics came immediately, but it was too late to save her."

Dr. Jesus Lopez Garcia, a gynecologist who performed the autopsy on Mercedes, testified that she died of an inflammation of the stomach lining caused by the massive hair ball.

"An extremely dense and large hair ball completely filled her stomach," Dr. Garcia testified.

Princess Di's risky crusade to help AIDS victims

Princess Di is risking her life to visit AIDS patients — even though her doctors have secretly warned against it!

The British royal held hands with and even hugged AIDS sufferers in her recent visit to an AIDS hospice in Mildmay Mission Hospital in London, England, shocking friends who worry about her health.

The brave Princess has mounted a campaign in her homeland to banish discrimination against victims suffering from the deadly virus. She'll do anything — even put herself at risk — to prove her point. So when she is invited to chat with terminally ill patients, she does it against the advice of her own physicians.

"Everybody says you can't get AIDS from a handshake — but there's always a risk," said a friend of the Princess of Wales, who did not wish to be identified. "We have begged Di not to endanger herself by spending so much time near sufferers of the disease.

"She visits AIDS patients whenever asked, shaking hands, chatting with them, allowing them to touch and even embrace her."

The official line from health authorities is that AIDS can't be spread by casual contact. But experts concede there is no way to rule out the possibility that the deadly virus can pass on, say from one person to another through a MACHO young Chinese warriors lash their razor-sharp swords onto the 48-foot-tall ritual ladder.

In the most barbaric ritual of courage on Earth, young Chinese warriors fearlessly scale a towering, 48-foot ladder of razor-sharp swords — in their bare feet!

Though many of the young but heroic climbers are left maimed and crippled for life, they would rather die than refuse to face the "Ladder of Faith" once they have been selected for the honor.

The ritual is the high point of the annual Dragon Festival of the Lisu tribe in the Guyang Commune of Yunnan Province in southwest China.

The traditional celebration dates back 500 years, to the 1400s, though the ordeal on the Ladder of Faith is believed to be centuries old.

On the night before their incredible test of valor, the young warriors — armed with swords and their hands bound in black cloth — whip themselves into a samba-like state in a ritual fire dance that continues until dawn.

As the sun rises, they march to the Ladder of Faith.

One after another, the brave but heedless warriors begin their climb.

And with each horrifying step, a new stream of blood gushes from their slashed and mutilated feet.

Only a handful reach the top. Far fewer make it back down to the ground.

Those who survive are honored with songs of respect from a chorus line of beautiful young maidens.

— ROSS BRADY

SCALING the "Ladder of Faith" is the ultimate test of courage for Chinese warriors.

Circus hero grabs tiger by the tail

. . . & saves Big Top crowd!

By DICK DONOVAN

A heroic trapeze artist single-handedly kept a rampaging circus tiger from leaping into a crowd of children — when he dragged the crazed beast away by her tail!

Then, as hundreds of youngsters screamed in terror, 21-year-old David Wynn leaped on the 500-pound tiger and wrestled with her until animal handlers could capture her.

"I was scared, but I knew I had to do something," Wynn said from Moruya, Australia, where the National Circus was playing a two-night run when the tiger attacked.

"All I could think about was, 'I've got to keep that cat away from the children.' " The courageous trapeze star was waiting for the wild animal act with trainer Brett Hall to end before entering the Big Top for his featured performance when suddenly the crowd's howls of delight turned into screams of terror.

"I ran inside the tent and saw that one of the big cats . . . a female named Monroe . . . had leaped on the trainer and was chewing on his ankle. I ran over and grabbed the tiger, but she lashed me with a kick from a hind leg, knocked me down and put a horrible gash in my arm.

"Then she made a dash for the stands where the children and their mothers were.

"I knew if she got to those stands a lot of little children would be killed or horribly mauled. I did the only thing I could think of . . . I grabbed Monroe by the tail and started pulling with all my strength. I managed to drag her away from the stands and I was hanging on to that tail for dear life. But suddenly she turned on me.

"I had no choice but try to fight her off. We rolled together on the ground and I could see her fangs only inches from my face.

"I knew if I quit fighting I was a dead man. I managed to push the tiger over to the enclosure and I pinned her head against the bars. Finally the handlers managed to rope her feet together and I was able to get away."

Wynn and trainer Hall were rushed to the hospital. Wynn recovered quickly and Hall was listed in satisfactory condition.

"David and Brett are both lucky to be alive," Moruya cop Jon Mayberry said.

"And if David hadn't done what he did, the cat would have then torn into those kids like a runaway freight train. It would have been a slaughter!"

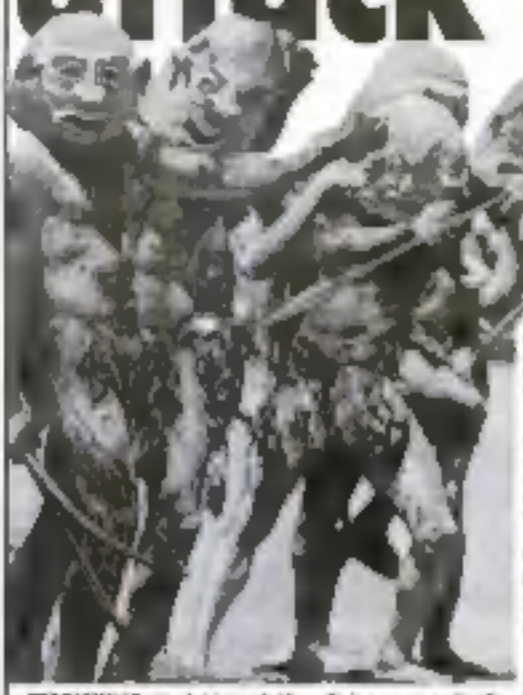
'We survived the attack of the killer Mud Men!'



TERRIFYING Mud Men of New Guinea set a deadly trap for a busload of nurses outside of Mikari.

By MICKEY McGUIRE

A busload of young nurses used their brains to escape a horrifying fate when they were attacked by a band of the most vicious savages on Earth — the Mud Men of New Guinea!

The savages, who get their name from the practice of covering their naked bodies with a clay-like mud, are believed to be the only headhunters and cannibals still inhabiting the primitive South Pacific island.

"If the 32 nurses had fallen into their sadistic clutches they would have been subjected to a horror beyond imagination," declared French anthropologist Henri Julian.

"They would have been brutally tortured and raped repeatedly. Then one or two a day would be skewered through the armpits and thighs and roasted alive over the white-hot embers of a cooking pit.

"You see, the Mud Men achieve their greatest level of excitement in hearing the agonized screams of women. It is the climax of their inhuman desire.

"Of course, after the poor woman has been barbecued, her head is lopped off and the rest of her body is eaten by those who took part in the capture.

"Fortunately for the nurses who escaped, they kept their heads and were able to outwit the Mud Men before they could storm the bus."

Dr. Julian said the nurses, young volunteers working with missionary groups from all over Europe, were being driven from Mikari to others in outlying jungle villages when their bus bogged down.

"There can be no doubt that the stuck girl was a trap set by the Mud Men," Dr. Julian said. "We've seen it on at least a dozen other raids on the buses.

"The Mud Men would then storm the bus, kill all of the men and boys and take the women and little girls captive.

"But the nurses were too smart for them. When the bus stalled and they saw the savages streaming out of the jungle, they all ran to the back of the bus and the driver then gunned the engine."

"With all of our added weight concentrated near the rear of the bus, the front wheels lifted off the ground and we had enough traction to pull out of the mud pit.

"The driver then drove head-on into the Mud Men and ran down several of them before they could leap clear. It was awful."

"Because of their quick thinking," Dr. Julian said, "the nurses escaped with their lives.

"Unfortunately, it would be useless to go after the savages. They ran fade into the jungle like ghosts in the

HERO ROOSTER SAVES BOY, 3

By LAUREL BOWN

Terrified 3-year-old Louie Corot fell into a backyard pond and nearly drowned before being rescued from the icy water — by his huge pet rooster Ray!

"Everybody knows how much chickens hate water, but that big rooster jumped right in and dragged my boy all the way to shore," said the tot's grateful mom Marie.

"Ray and Louie are great friends and the chicken followed Louie everywhere. When my son got in trouble, Ray just wasn't about to let his little buddy die."

The shocking tale began one afternoon when Louie slipped away from his parents and headed for a pond near their farm home outside Elijah, Praire — with his 18-pound rooster right on his tail.

The boy climbed onto a log at the edge of the water and soon found himself drifting 40 feet from shore.

"Just as I looked out my window, I saw the boy topple off the log and go under the water," recalled wheelchair-bound neighbor Nicole Pelletier, 61.

"I grabbed the phone to call the child's mother but I couldn't reach her. I was frantic. And then I saw that rooster jump into the water and flap and kick his way out to where Louie was going down for the fourth or fifth time.

"The rooster grabbed little Louie's shirt and pulled him all the way to shore and up onto dry land. It all happened very fast, and when it was over I couldn't believe what I'd just seen."

After dragging limp Louie to safety, the cock-a-doodle dandy ran 100 yards to the front of the house where the boy's unsuspecting parents were painting a porch.

"That bird was wringing wet and rising a racket, and that's when it dawned on us that Louie wasn't where he was supposed to be," said the boy's dad Maurice.

"He seemed to insist we follow him, and when he led us to the pond we saw Louie lying there, barely breathing.

HERO pet rooster didn't hesitate when the little boy fell into the water, say witnesses who watched the rescue. The rooster grabbed the boy's shirt and pulled him to shore.

remembering while my wife rose to phone an ambulance.

"They told us at the hospital that our baby came within minutes, possibly seconds, of dying or suffering brain damage. It was a very close call."

But lucky Louie has fully recovered from his hair-raising ordeal and is back romping around the farm — with the heroic rooster tagging along behind him.

"I never thought I'd find myself loving a rooster," said mother Marie. "But anything Ray wants Ray's going to get. And I think he knows he's done something special."

"Ever since Ray pulled Louie from that pond, he's been crowing louder than ever before."

Zapped by an oven

Seven people who became mysteriously ill may have been zapped by a microwave oven, doctors believe. Two of the people were hospitalized in Medfield, England, while the others were treated for dizziness, officials said.

Daughter won't hug dad — so he torches her!

An angry father burned his 7-year-old daughter just a few inches back — because she wouldn't give him a goodnight hug!

Little Nina Engleman went to a horrifying death when her 38-year-old dad John soaked her bedroom, while she was in it, with a fast-burning stove oil, and set it ablaze.

The youngster perished in the flames that raged in the Engleman home in the Tintern gland. When Nina's frantic mom Andrealla pleaded with her crazed husband to save the child, the father told her to "do it yourself."

Doctors experts testified that Engleman suffers from chronic schizophrenia, the trial judge accepted his plea of guilty to a charge of manslaughter.

The judge ordered the father taken to a mental hospital

Tinseltown shocker:

Cary Grant tried to buy Sophia from her hubby

REAL-LIFE passion was simmering behind the scenes on the set of "The Pride and the Passion" when Cary Grant tried to talk Sophia Loren into marrying him.

Dashing silver screen superstar Cary Grant was so in love with luscious Italian sexpot Sophia Loren, he tried to buy her from her lover, producer Carlo Ponti.

That's the claim of authors Charles Higham and Roy Moseley in their new book Cary Grant: The Lonely Heart. They write that Cary popped the big question to Sophia while the two were filming the war flick The Pride and the Passion.

At the time, Cary was still wed to Betsy Drake and Sophia was waiting for lover Carlo to dump his wife.

Sophia turned the idea around and then told Cary to forget it. The jolly-jaby Carlo was getting a divorce and married Sophia. He again proposed and she again rejected him when they filmed Houseboat the following year.

But Cary wanted Sophia. He contacted Carlo and told him he'd star in four movies for him for practically nothing — if Carlo dumped Sophia. Cary's fees would normally have added up to several million dollars.

But Carlo said no, and Cary had to live without his Sophia. — London Sunday Express.

EX-MARINE Gene Hackman

Two of this year's leading candidates for the Best Actor Oscar, Warner Bros. Burbank's Gene Hackman and Rain Man Dustin Hoffman, were considered lost causes by their classmates at acting school.

Incredible, both Gene and Dustin — who have already won Oscars — were tagged as Least Likely to Succeed at the Pasadena Playhouse acting school.

"Neither Dusten nor myself looked like the leading man of that era," chuckled Gene as he recalled those days back in the mid-1950s. "Dusten was called a 'freak' because he wore a leather vest and sandals, which was outrageous then. I'd been in the Marine Corps for five years and was married — an equally unlikely candidate for leading stardom.

"We were relentlessly told by acting teachers and casting directors that we were 'character' types."

Amazingly, Hackman and Hoffman are considered two of the finest actors in movies today. And they've got the Oscars and the bucks to prove it!

LONELY BACHELOR ADVERTISES FOR A WIFE

Lonely bachelor Gary Azar went looking for love — with "wife wanted" signs in the windows of his restaurant.

And he found that the world is full of lonely women.

Better hurry gals — he already has more than 100 applications

More than 100 women filled out applications to be Azar's mate in just three weeks, answering questions about their education, religion, hobbies and preferences in a man.

"The signs were just a joke at first, but I believe I'll find the girl of my dreams," said Gary, 38, a born-again Christian who doesn't smoke and drinks only an occasional glass of wine. Gary's friends got tired of him griping about the lack of women in his life and put up the signs.

"They said I was pestering and groaning too much," said Gary.

At owner of Hooper's Cafe in Biddeford, Maine, Gary works 13 hours a day, six days a week. "That doesn't give me much time to look for love," said Gary, who doesn't go to bars or discos.

"I'm looking for someone who has a good personality, attractive, who has a good brain," he said. "I'm looking for inner beauty."

Gary had decided to look himself in his hometown after two long-term relationships didn't work out. "But every body needs somebody," said the shy guy who has trouble calling women for dates.

"I'm convinced the right woman for me is out there somewhere," he said. "I aim to find her no matter how long it takes."

If you would like to apply to be Gary's wife, send him a letter stating your hobbies and religious affiliation along with general background information.

Jo Baldrich:

Last year I was asked to test a weight loss formula and

I lost so much weight, so fast, that my doctor said, 'That's enough'!

HERE'S WHAT HAPPENED: I went from 178 to 115 pounds in no time while never depriving myself of the foods I like. One year later, I still haven't regained one pound!

I used to weigh 110 pounds when I was still in high school. Then, I got married, had my first child and there went my youthful figure. It bothered me but I thought that things would straighten themselves out. A year later, I had my second one and gained another 15 pounds. After my third one, I gained again, and when I had my fourth and last child, I ended up weighing as an eighty (178 pounds).

I WAS FAT!

My blood pressure was all the way up. I had become a pre-diabetic for diabetes. My heart felt like it had become too weak to keep me going. Even getting up from a chair had become a chore. I felt permanently exhausted and was ashamed of myself each time I had to face the outside world.

So, my doctor put me on a special diet. At first, that worked a little, but soon, to my willpower weakened, it was back on some snack or terrible frustration to lose a miserable two pounds. The slightest escapade, like eating my husband's dessert, quickly made me regain four.

It was as if I was getting fat from simply looking at yummy food!

From then on, I resolutely started to try every weight loss system on the market. EVERY SINGLE ONE OF THEM! Now and then, it would help a little, but never for long. This went on until I was really feeling desperate and ready to cry.

Then, One Day . . .

I was asked to try a new formula called REDUCIN. I was confident that I would write a statement after trying it for eight weeks. I thought: Why wait, if it can't do any harm, even if it doesn't help, I have nothing to lose. Nevertheless, the first thing I did when I received the formula was to show it to my doctor who said: For me, it's O.K. It's harmless and it helps. It's marvelous.

Five Days Later . . .

I had already lost 7 pounds! Imagine, I, who had tried it all, I was suddenly losing weight at the rate of more than a pound a day. Without any effort at all! I couldn't believe it was really happening. I have always loved pastas and chocolate. I would die for anything with chocolate. And now, I didn't have to give them up. The only difference is that, without running after it, I was eating only half of what I used to.

When I was down to a slim 115 pounds, my doctor said: I insist, your blood pressure is back to normal and I no longer see any danger for diabetes. Don't overdo it, don't go too skinny, that's all right. It may be unwise to lose more than you already did.

Today . . .

I feel so young and beautiful. Again, now that I can wear the same clothes I used to wear when I was a teenager. REDUCIN is simply fantastic. What could be better than losing weight without effort or having to give up your favorite foods. Knowing that, should you ever have a problem again in the future, REDUCIN is there to help you out in no time at all!

Taxpayers save a bundle when convicted murderer accidentally fries

ZAPPED! Killer sitting on toilet electrocutes himself!

By SUSAN JAMISON

A convicted murderer died in agony when he electrocuted himself accidentally while sitting on the metal commode in his jail cell.

Michael Godwin, 28, bit through the cord of his television headphones in a misguided attempt to repair them and died when he was zapped by an electric current. He had been convicted of murder and sexual assault in 1981 and given the death sentence, but his sentence was later reduced to life in prison.

"He would have been killed by electrocution had he been on death row," said Francis Archibald of the Central Correctional Institute in Columbia, S.C., where the convict died. "Instead, he did it to himself. It's ironic."

Officials have ruled out murder or suicide in Godwin's bizarre death.

According to Archibald, an investigation showed the man had gone to his cell after meal time to watch TV as he normally did. Later that evening a guard making bed checks investigated when Godwin did not answer his call.

He found the inmate sitting on his toilet stark naked, his mouth blistered and burned by a massive jolt of electricity.

"The TV was on and Godwin had his earphones on his ears," Archibald told The NEWS.

"Under his chin where the two wires from each earpiece connected there was a plastic connector. He had taken that section of the cord in his mouth and electrocuted himself."

"His mouth, tongue and lips were burned and his teeth were damaged. The earphones were connected to a 13-inch color TV which must have delivered a tremendous electrical charge. And because he was naked and sitting on a metal commode he had no protection from the voltage."

A coroner's report concluded Godwin had killed himself accidentally. Archibald said officials believe the man had been trying to repair his earphones when he bit into the cord and zapped himself.

FRIED: Convict Michael Godwin, 28, electrocuted himself while sitting on the toilet.

Clothes-minded neighbor bugged by naked snowman

Officials in North Haven, N.Y., thought they'd heard it all — until they were called out to investigate a complaint about a naked snowman!

The strange case began when officials of the Long Island town received a call from a resident who was offended by the appearance of an anatomically correct snowman on a neighbor's lawn.

Authorities dispatched Building Inspector Albert Daniels to check out the indecent snowman sculpture. Daniels drove to the address given by the caller, but by the time he arrived the offending part of the snowman's anatomy was gone.

"It either melted or the kneaded off," said Sandra Hines, the town clerk. "We didn't see it with our own eyes."

But even if authorities had seen the snowman's offensive part, they probably couldn't have done anything about it because there is no law on the town's books about indecent exposures when it comes to snow-

Wife kept hubby's mummified corpse in bed — for 8 years!

She thought he was still alive!

By PETE COOKE

A registered nurse testified that she kept her husband's mummified corpse in bed for eight long years because she wasn't convinced he was dead!

Carole Stevens told a jury in Galesburg, Ill., that even after the body of her husband, Carl, turned black and shriveled up she continued to take care of him.

"Carl didn't show all the signs of death that I had been trained to look for as a registered nurse," the 42-year-old woman told jurors.

Carl Stevens, a diabetic, collapsed and died in the couple's home in Knoxville, Ill., on May 1979, at the age of 39.

Mrs. Stevens testified that she found her husband lying facedown on the bedroom floor.

"From the very beginning something inside me told me he wasn't dead and that's why I continued to take care of him," she said. "I rolled him over on his back and he stayed on the floor — as if he were on a cross — for two months."

Then, the man's corpse suddenly turned black and began to swell, Mrs. Stevens testified.

And then, just as suddenly, a black liquid came out of his mouth and nostrils and he began to drip body down and turned a blackish brown all over," she said.

Authorities discovered the body in January 1980, after Dr. Turkish, Mrs. Stevens' neighbor, became so concerned about the Stevens' two children, Cindy, now 18, and Craig, 16.

The family had been telling friends and relatives that Carl Stevens was ill, but Deutsch said he discovered the truth when he finally confronted Mrs. Stevens and was shown the corpse.

"I saw her husband on bed and he appeared to be dead," Deutsch told the jury. "He was all dried out, but his beautiful red hair was unmistakable. His skin was drawn tight around his body like leather."

Investigators on the horrific case said Stevens' body was black except for a small area around his navel where Mrs. Stevens had poured liquid vitamins.

"Up until the moment we took the body away they genuinely believed that it was alive," said Knox County Sheriff Mark Shearer.

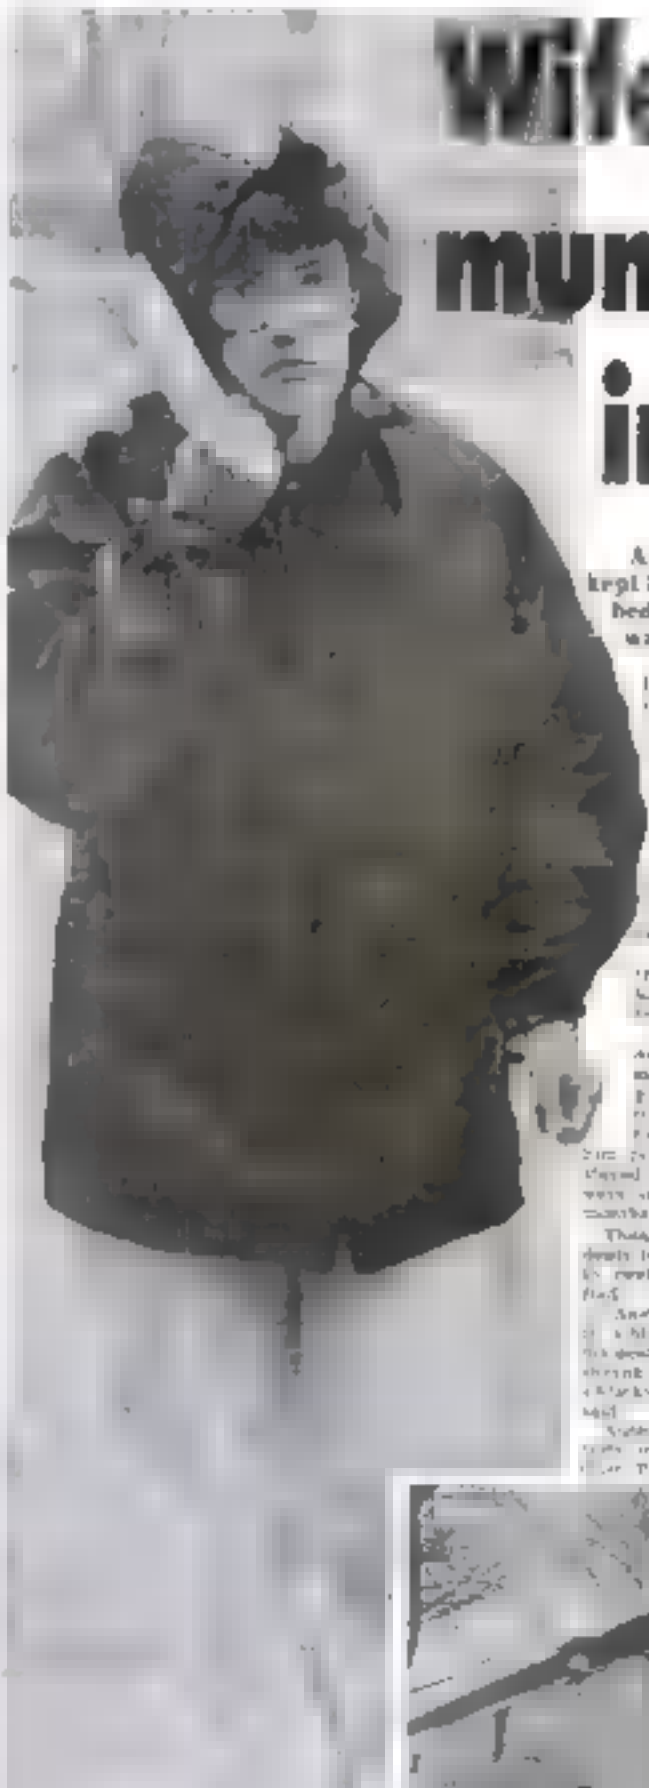
"The body was lying in a neat, well-made bed," he said. "Blankets and sheets were pulled up to the chin and tucked tight.

"The body was here in the room, true it was wearing pajama bottoms, underwear and socks," the sheriff said. "Everything was very neat. Every room I was told that the family changed the mummy's clothes and bedding almost every day."

Mrs. Stevens pleaded guilty to charges of forgery and failing to report a death. She was sentenced to 18 days in jail and placed on two years' probation.

Her testimony came in a case against Dr. Richard Kuntz, a dentist and family friend, who was convicted of forgery for witnessing Stevens' signature on documents enabling Mrs. Stevens to refinance her home mortgage in 1984.

Sheriff Shearer says he will push for a new state law that specifically makes it illegal to keep a dead body around the house. Right now, there are no laws against that in Illinois.



WIDOW Carole Stevens (above) said she let her children crawl for her dead husband's body for eight long years in the family's home (right) in Knoxville, Ill. They dressed and cared for the mummified corpse daily in

Heartless Russians kill pet dogs to make nice hats!

Cruel Russians have declared war on man's best friend and are butchering helpless dogs to use their pelts for fur hats!

The icy nation's desperate shortage of winter clothing has triggered a widespread slaughter of dogs that are quickly fashioned into tawny-warm hats complete with ear flaps and visors.

The rabbit headwear is a hot item on the black market in every major Soviet city.

In Moscow for example a sheep skin hat of poodle fur carries a staggering $400 price tag.

Matching gloves and scarf also sold.

The same hat made from the hide of a silver Siberian husky would bring the illegal seller $250.

In fact, people are openly calling for an official decree to destroy all dogs and farm their pelts for clothing.

"Everyone knows that the Russians are pet killers but this time they've gone too far," Doris Spiel an Austrian animal rights activist, told reporters in Vienna.

"After they cut off all their dogs they'll go after their rabbits, their guinea pigs their monkeys and their cats. They might as well kill all the people."

Zoology at Vienna said the world will be devastating.

"I think most of us would agree that these Russians are barbarians who will do anything that can make a fur money and warmth."

The experts report that the illegal sale of dog pelts also is being welcomed by those trying to stretch their incomes and southerners trying to make ends meet — is becoming business.

Soviet newspapers report that even pets especially poodles are seen by greedy hunters anywhere as full skins of their helpless ex-pusher owners.

There are laws in the Soviet Union against such barbaric activities a Tass news agency spokesman in Moscow said. But the law is seldom if ever enforced.

While weights are still low will stop at nothing to get warm. Besides the big fur hats are very popular among both sexes.

Hats made from bear and lynx and wolves sometimes red fox fur are by far the most sought after.

German shepherd malamute and Pomeranian hats bring lasting prices but also rare. Fight or rabbit fur really the least expensive.

Greedy hunters chase poodles & shoot them in the street!

PEDIGREES like this malamute are highly prized for their thick fur coats

The skins from larger breeds like St Bernards are getting as publicity as fat rolls among those wealthy enough to afford their staggering price tags.

And furry pets soldiers and stranded mutts are equally sought as genuine fun among rich young Russian teenagers who haven't the riches to afford the real thing.

"The life of a dog is not such an important consideration for us," the Tass spokesman declared.

"Very soon in Russia, a man's best friend will be his hat."

Incredible human stump supports family of 10

Nature robbed Om Prakash of [illegible] legs but the gutsy stump man [illegible]ed back to lead a [illegible]mal life and support a family of 10!

"I wish somebody would make a film on me so that I could inspire millions of handicapped people around the world," Prakash told newsmen in Burhanpur, India.

"We disabled people can also lead normal lives. This is what I want to prove. What handicapped people need is hope."

Prakash should know. The 32-year-old man was born without arms or legs. His parents actually had to hide him from superstitious villagers who believed that his deformity was a curse — and threatened to kill him.

Somehow the boy survived. And thanks to his father, who spent countless hours teaching him to eat, dress, write and draw, the human stump's confidence grew.

By the time he was 15, Prakash was earning a handsome living from people who paid to see him thread needles, light cigarettes, or dazzle with a pencil or piece of chalk that he held with his teeth.

The crowds of spectators were amazed to see the boy-man stump pour his own tea from a pot into a saucer and drink it. He has also taught himself to read and speak three languages.

His skill makes good money as a performer. In fact, his income actually supports his mother, father and seven brothers and sisters, all of whom are normal but cannot find steady jobs.

Prakash even has several girlfriends who adore his lean, dark-haired humor, candor and charm.

"I am proud of my friends, my work and myself," said Prakash.

"The way I see it, I am no longer a joke of nature but a symbol of what a man can do if he puts his heart and spirit to work."

Our baby wants to go off to the wicked big city

Dear Dotti: My wife and I are so upset we can hardly sleep or eat. Our beloved daughter Melissa has taken it into her willful head that she is going to go to a college in Chicago that has offered her a scholarship to study business.

We have always planned that she would go to the local college where her mother and I met. We're happy as newlyweds. Up until last fall our daughter was happy with this plan, too, until a teacher started filling her head with nonsense about how she'd get a better education in the city.

My wife and I have discussed our plans time and again with Melissa. We've given solid reasons why it makes more sense for her to stay home, but she's adamant. She doesn't want to hear about how much it will cost us. She doesn't want to hear about how we'll miss her. She doesn't want to hear about how dangerous it is for a young girl to live in a big city.

We've even told her that we'll buy her a car if she'll stay home, but she says she wants to be independent. She says she wants to live in a dorm and be with her friends.

We've been married for 20 years, and we've never had a fight like this before. We're both very upset, and we don't know what to do. We love our daughter very much, and we want what's best for her. But we also want her to be happy.

Please help us. We're at our wits' end. — Mom and Dad, Chicago

Send your letters to Dear Dotti, Weekly World News, 600 Enquirer Circle, Lantana, FL 33462.

My hubby's mind is an other woman

Dear Dotti: My marriage is in trouble. My husband is unable to have sex with me without another woman in mind. During sex, he calls me by another name and puts unbelievable demands on me.

He often enjoys group sex. Although he and I make plans to be free, he goes ahead with his weird behavior hoping he will get over it and realize his mistake.

Sometimes he says he's sorry and promises to stop, but really it's just getting worse. What can I do? — Unhappy in Chicago

Dear Unhappy: He's not your problem to cure. And if he's been this complex and compelling long, his fantasies to himself or take his sexual behavior and his problems with him.

Mom deserved better advice

Dear Dotti: I'm appalled at the advice you offered to a recent widower. You called a woman stupid because she has three children, all with different fathers, and was considering having another baby by a man who is still married to another woman.

I've stupid have offered her words of wisdom to give her strength. — Appalled in Wyandotte

Dear Appalled: I'm sure he was glad to receive the support of another neighbor in his circumstances. And you don't sound so selfish either.

Should cheerleader give up cute beau?

Dear Dotti: I just got elected cheerleader by the kids at my high school and we've had quite the greatest thing that's ever happened to me. The really neat part is that the retired guy on the football team has started asking me out every weekend and we have a terrific time together.

But one of the other cheerleaders said to drop him, and she says if I'll give him up to she can get him back. She said all the other girls will take me head cheerleader. If I don't give him up, she says they'll all vote against me. I sure would like to be head cheerleader. Do you think I should do it? — Rah-Rah in Shreveport, La.

Dear Rah-Rah: Sounds like you're fallen on your head too many times while practicing your cheers. What makes you think you can trust this scheming bimbo? And what's Mr. Football Hero want a No. 10 say to this to date? Sounds to me like you'd already got it made in the romance and popularity department, so forget this screwy deal.

Stupid folks need to listen to Dotti

Dear Dotti: I love your answers. You really tell it like it is and come back with some super advice. If more people would listen to your advice, then we would have fewer stupid people out there.

I read you each week and think you're great. Keep up the good work. — Lisa in Palo Alto, Calif.

Dear Lisa: It's folks like you that really make me say. Keep those cards and letters coming and I'll keep telling it like it is.

How can I get my old love back?

Dear Dotti: I met this guy about three years ago and fell in love. He was really about me, but I wouldn't give up my old boyfriend.

Now I'm rid of the old boyfriend and want the guy, but he has a new girlfriend and doesn't want me. What can I do to convince him to get rid of his girlfriend and date me? — Need A Plan in Manitoba, Canada

Dear Need A Plan: You might try getting a brain transplant. Any gal who thinks a guy's going to marry a bitch for three years is out of her mind.

Shoot all the creeps who park in handicapped spots!

Editors: Any able-bodied driver who parks in a handicapped parking zone ought to be shot.

My father went to the store the other day and found none of the handicapped places open because two jerks were illegally parked. Dad has emphysema and a crippled leg (he's 78) and by the time he walked from the very back of the lot to the store he was so exhausted employees had to call the paramedics.

They also called me, and I got there just in time to see some young guy about 30 storing groceries into his car, which he'd parked in a handicapped zone. I told him what just happened to Dad, but he just kind of grinned and said he didn't see the sign. I was so mad I grabbed him by the jacket and rammed his head into the signpost so he'd recognize it the next time. The last I saw of him, he was sitting there wiping the blood from his brow. — P.K., Indianapolis, Ind.

Angelika Svensson rescued Pandora Willemsen, 11, from the balcony of her third-floor apartment in Helsingborg, Sweden, just seconds before flames engulfed the spot where she'd been standing. The frightened woman was brought to the ground and cuddled by a fireman whose son was treated for smoke inhalation and injuries. The fire was all around her — and five were inside. Hunter sued for killing squirrel!

In an incredible test case, an animal rights activist is taking a hunter to court and accusing him of murder — for killing a squirrel!

By ALAN PETERS

The action filed by Swedish attorney Ingrid Haglund comes in the wake of Sweden's sweeping new animal protection laws under which any citizen can sue on behalf of an injured or abused animal.

Stalked hunter Bengt Wendel was slapped with a wrongful death suit accusing him of "the senseless murder of a helpless creature" and demand he pay damages in the sum of $1 million.

"You don't shoot the Pope instead of a red squirrel," said Wendel, a 48-year-old mechanic.

Sture Lindgren, Wendel's lawyer, predicted the case will be thrown out of court.

But animal lovers who roam the woods near Sylen, Sweden with cameras and photographers, not guns and hunters, flocked to Wendel's aim on Oct. 12 as he fired his rifle and killed a squirrel were subpoenaed as evidence against him in the suit filed by Miss Haglund.

Lindgren, the defense lawyer, said Miss Haglund and other animal rights activists are hoping to get hunting outlawed in Sweden.

Those so-called sacred cows have already gotten laws on the books enabling farmers to shoot moose if they take away their livelihood, Lindgren said.

Cows, chickens and pigs must be kept in pens. They must be provided with special diets and cared for. Lindgren argued Miss Haglund is using Sweden's liberal animal rights laws to take away the rights of people.

"If we can stop hunters who enjoy the murder, who knows where it will be stopped," Haglund said. Philosophers said hunting is a form of sadism.

At a press conference in Stockholm, Miss Haglund told reporters she believes the lawsuit against Wendel is merely the first of many that will be filed against hunters in Sweden.

The law would not only be used to help animals, but also to protect people, she said.

"We are fighting cruel methods of hunting and we want to put an end to the use of dogs and cats in hunting," she said.

"We are making small progress. We have had some success in getting hunting methods changed. We have also succeeded in getting certain areas declared bird sanctuaries."

The lawsuit was born in a small village in the mountains of Peru, about 150 miles north of Lima. And

The alarmed doctors have dismissed the grotesque creature as stillborn — the dead fetus — and say he is a throwback to the dawn of time when the creatures that would evolve into Man first crawled from the sea.

The tiny freak is so revolting that anguished mother Salustiana Tamayo is not allowed to see the inexplicably ugly being that was conceived and carried in her womb.

The freak — still unnamed because of its disgusting appearance — is being kept alive in a makeshift life-support chamber that might calm the natural instincts of babies. More than 20 doctors, nurses and technicians have maintained a 24-hour vigil in their desperate efforts to prolong the life of the bizarre little monster.

"Our anniversary did not fall ... ago and bad weather spoiled an earlier anniversary party we'd planned. I thought a trip to the shops would be just what the doctor ordered.

"I guess she was more down in the dumps than I realized."

The London oldsters were on a nightclub on the resort town of Wunderley when a couple of shapely dancing girls spotted Charles walking to the restroom and asked him if he'd like to pose for a souvenir picture.

The silver-haired grandpa agreed and ordered a print.

"It had been a lovely holiday until I showed the wife that picture," Charles said.

"She's normally so easygoing about things like that but this time she got jealous.

"She called me a crafty so and so," and when I tried to ease her out of being mad at me just made things that much worse. I pleaded with her not to spoil the holiday and she walked away. I didn't go after my wife because I never dreamed she would do anything so desperate."

PRANKSTER Charles French struck this pose with two sexy showgirls at a nightclub — but his joke backfired when his wife drowned herself.

Charles said Phyllis walked up on the shore near... by a day later.

Because of Mrs. French's state of mind it appears she decided on impulse to kill herself," said Dr. Oliver Prior, the coroner.

Apparently she just walked straightaway into the sea until she drowned herself. It was such a stupid and unnecessary thing all around.

Said heartsick Charles: "We ... er. It never should have ended like this.

Dying wife leaves a legacy of love

Baby born just as mom loses fight for life

By DICK DONOVAN

Only scant hours before she died in a coma, tragic Arlene Watson unknowingly left her grieving husband Richard a precious gift of life — their newborn son!

That tragic, 1-pound, 8-ounce bundle of love was triumphantly delivered by Caesarean section as young Arlene — a bride for less than a year — was losing her hopeless battle for life.

She died never having had eyes on the baby she and Richard had happily been expecting for seven months.

"Nothing can bring Arlene back to me," 20-year-old Richard said as he cuddled his sleeping son Jonathan in his home in Perth Scotland. "But the baby means that I still have a part of her with me."

In their brief time together, Arlene and Richard were very happy. And when the couple learned that she was pregnant, nothing, it seemed then, could possibly cast a shadow across their lives.

Then the unthinkable happened and their dream world came crashing down. Arlene was stricken with a brain haemorrhage and plunged into a deep coma.

She was rushed to a hospital where surgeons struggled incredibly to save her and the baby in her womb.

But as her condition worsened, the doctors decided on an unavailable Caesarean delivery was her baby's only chance. The operation was carried out and baby Jonathan came into the world two months prematurely — and just 12 hours before his mother died.

For a couple of months it was touch and go whether little Jonathan would win his own desperate fight for life. But with expert care at a special hospital in Aberdeen, he pulled through.

Richard finally took his baby son home from the hospital on the very day that Arlene would have marked her 21st birthday.

"I'm still trying to come to terms with having lost my wife," Richard said. "But having Jonathan helps ease the pain. Jonathan is Arlene's gift of life that will keep her memory alive forever."

But I still have a part of her with me, says heartbreak dad

UFO seen hovering in scene from 1928 movie!

A silent movie filmed in 1928 and never released clearly shows a UFO hovering over the earth.

"It's not a prop — it's real," Gerard Tesson, director of Britain's Film Museum, told reporters in Paris. "The saucer-shaped craft shows up on a 10-second segment of film and the actors on the set don't even seem to know that it's there.

"The craft is at treetop level and spotlights for the first few seconds. Then it begins to move slowly out of the field of view."

The movie, titled Le Vertige, was directed by Marcel L'Herbier and starred Jaque Catelain and Nadia Sibirskaia.

The black and white romance melodrama was removed and directed by Robert Gance, who died shortly after the completion of the film and was not able to edit it for release.

Catherine Martin, the Paris-based UFO researcher, has seen the film but stopped short of saying whether the UFO is authentic.

"It appears to be real," she said.

"But I want to study the UFO sighting more closely before I say anything definite."

The film has been shown to several audiences in Paris and has received rave reviews.

Tesson revealed the cleverly titled movie after finding it in the basement of the museum.

Scientists admit that planetary positions on our birthdate influence our lives, our behavior and the right – and wrong – decisions we make. Now, more and more people recognize that a particular number will also influence our lives. Some assert that this number is the visible sign – much like a mystical presence – through which the infinite intelligence helps us...proving that we are not totally on our own.

If you have said as I have, statements made by hopeless winners (over $1,000,000), then you know they very often admit to having been helped by being dictated all or some of the numbers. They will acknowledge this fact openly though some may not believe them.

The more specialized media will also prove to you that an incredible amount of people have won hundreds and thousands they never could have hoped to win – thanks to their personal lucky number. They often talk and write about it.

Huge reptile had already eaten 13 people!

Croc chokes to death on bone in witch doc's nose

By IRWIN FISHER

A crocodile that ate 13 people over the past 18 years has choked to death on the bone in a witch doctor's nose!

"It was the damndest thing I have ever seen," wildlife official Yahay Mokdin told newsmen in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

"When we found the croc by the bank of a river it was belly up and bloated, with two human legs sticking out of its mouth. We didn't know what was going on until we split open the carcass to free the man's body.

"That's when we found the witch doctor's nose bone, a big curved fowley, stuck in the croc's throat."

The bizarre drama unfolded when the 78-year-old witch doctor waded into the shallows of Malaysia's Muara Sungei Anak River to bathe.

According to witnesses, the 23-foot croc — which is feared by people along the river and is known to have killed at least 13 people since 1978 — surged up behind the man and knocked him down with a single swipe of its tail.

"The old man screamed but it was all over in seconds," said one witness. "It dragged him into deep water and ripped him to pieces."

Huge crocodile eats man, its 13th victim

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — A 23-foot crocodile called Datuk Seruing, or King of Crocodiles, by river bank people, attacked and ate a fisherman — its 13th victim in 18 years.

PRESS reports from Malaysia told of crocodile's 13th victim.

But it couldn't digest the nose bone, which had become lodged in its throat.

"The witch doctor's legs were sticking out of the croc's mouth and it was acting real crazy.

"It could run a few feet, then it would stop and shake its head.

"It finally rolled over on its back and started kicking its legs. That's when it was when it died."

The witch doctor suffered massive head and neck injuries in the attack and died in hospital. Wildlife official Mokdin admitted that the death of the killer croc itself was "just a matter of luck."

"The crocodile could have snapped the old man's nose bone like a twig if it had gotten it in his jaws," Officer Mokdin said.

"By some strange twist of fate it didn't.

"That's why it got stuck in the croc's throat.

"That's why the monster is dead."

Penny-pincher lived like a bum — but had $250G in the bank!

A penny-pinching old miser lived for years in a run-down room without a bath, wore ragged clothes and spent $4 a day on food — but died leaving a $250,000 fortune.

"He just wanted to live his life and be left alone," said the YMCA room manager where retiree Howard Drennan lived when he died after a stroke.

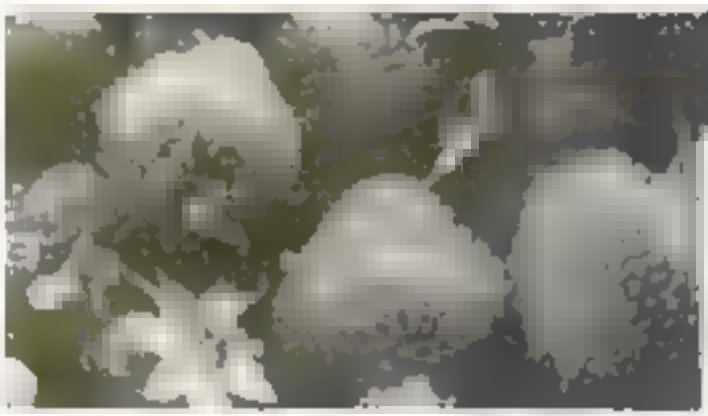
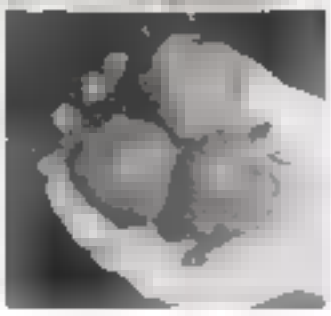
All-Season Strawberries for Spring Planting





One Berry Makes a Mouthful Just Like This

PICK BIG, JUICY STRAWBERRIES ALL FOUR SEASONS OF THE YEAR

New 'Brighton' Laughs at Summer's Long 'Dog Days' — Bears Summer, Fall, Winter & Spring Starting in Just 60 Days.

These Berries Fill Each Hands (Just like this)

There has never been a strawberry like Brighton, yielding big, juicy berries all four seasons of the year. Other strawberries have built-in time clocks that automatically shut them down at some long summer rest stop. Even the so-called 'everbearer' types stop paying except during short, cool days of spring and fall. But NOT Brighton.

New Brighton strawberry is the fruit of a new race of perpetual-bearing strawberries philosophically geared day neutral to scientific name meaning unaffected by day length. They even continue their new shift of production in temperatures up to 85 degrees, and will keep on bearing during winter when below freezing.

New Breakthrough in Strawberries

Developed by plant scientists at the University of California from a single seed discovered near Salt Lake City, Utah, Brighton requires no special care to start bearing days of fruit, continuously. Each plant is so eager to bear fruit it starts flowering and fruiting within 60 days. THEN adds an exceptional number of strong runners and daughter plants that ALSO flower and bear fruit the same season. What's more these 'bonus' plants will produce flowers and fruit whether you set them out in spring or fall.

Brighton just has plants in open with beautiful white star-shaped flowers and clusters of delicious red fruit hanging on around the world.

Plus with each order of Brighton strawberry plants, we send you FREE complete planting instructions, including tips on planning in containers, growing indoors, growing hydroponically, and other new ideas.

I was branded an AIDS victim — by mistake

By SUSAN JAMIESON

Heartbroken Michael MacLaine lost his wife, his job and his will to live — after he was mistakenly branded an AIDS victim.

The welder was even thrown in jail so officials could run tests on him. But by the time he proved he was AIDS-free, his life had been destroyed.

"I'm so damn angry," said the 30-year-old former stream from Norwich, England, after his ordeal. "When I think of all that I've been through. No one would believe that I didn't have AIDS!

"My wife Sally wondered if I was gay and we had a lot of arguments in the end it got too much and she finally left me."

MacLaine's nightmare began when he was involved in a minor accident while riding a motor scooter. The young man — who had just returned from his honeymoon — was arrested for driving without a license.

When he appeared before a magistrate, someone mistakenly stamped the word "AIDS" on his file. Those four letters spelled disaster.

The judge ordered Mr. Laine held in jail so tests could be run on him. He was sent to a prison hospital, where a second blunder confirmed that he had the disease. Prison officials put him in solitary confinement so he wouldn't contaminate other prisoners. He stayed in his lonely cell for three long weeks, even contemplating suicide in his desperation.

When at last he was freed on probation, he went to his own doctor for tests — and proved he didn't carry the AIDS virus. But by then his marriage and his job were lost.

"Sally, my wife, was devastated," MacLaine recalled. "It caused so much tension and so many fights our marriage broke up.

"At work, guys made my life hell. They would make remarks like, 'Wipe the toilet seat now that Michael's back.' I couldn't stand it."

Harassed until he quit his job, without the wife he adores, MacLaine has been told his case is now the subject of a special investigation by embarrassed bureaucrats. Whatever their findings, it's too late for the man destroyed by the blunder.

"When I discovered it was a mistake, the damage had been done," admitted MacLaine's wife, who now lives with her parents. "There were so many fights, I called him so many names. We did

. . . and it cost me my wife, my job and ruined my life!

MICHAEL MacLaine lost not just almost everything he had.

Skier and deer have a run-in

A teenaged skier suffered a sprained ligament when she raced down a slope — and slammed into a deer.

Andrea Spaeth, 16, of Barrington, R.I., said hitting the animal was like slamming into a rock.

"It ran across the trail," said the high school junior, who was skiing with her family in West Dover, Vt. "I ran right into it. The doctors who treated me thought I was crazy, but somebody called up and confirmed it — that they saw a girl hit by a deer."

Andrea was treated for a

Granny bops bank robber

A 6-foot bank robber was chased from the scene of his crime by a 68-year-old granny who walloped him with her shopping bag.

So flustered was the crook by his pint-sized challenger that he forgot to hide his face from the bank's camera and cops later arrested the man and sent him to jail.

"I would like her informed of my personal admiration for her," said the judge after sending robber Peter Ejoure to prison for 12 years.

According to court testimony, the 5-foot supergranny walked into a bank in London shortly after Ejoure had grabbed $10,000 from a terrified teller. The unidentified heroine sized up the situation and waded right into the fray, slapping Ejoure with her gro

How to zip through housework like a pro

Cleaning king Don Aslett has made a fortune doing what housewives do for nothing — snooping, dusting and picking up after others.

So he figures he's in a good position to hand out tips to help millions of women get their housework done faster, easier and cheaper.

"Most people spend eight hours on Saturday cleaning up their homes when they could really do it in one if they knew what they were doing," said Aslett of Pocatello, Idaho.

The author of Is There Life After Housework (Writer's Digest Books, $7.95) says a few simple truths have helped his cleaning company — Varsity Contractors — make a big fortune. All any housewife needs to do is follow his example to cut her chores down to an easy, breezy task.

● Get Rid of Junk Litter.

● Make Everyone Pitch In. Mop and clutter create 85 percent of the dirt in a household. Don't pick up after them — get them to pick up after themselves.

● Prevention Cuts Floor Cleaning Time by 50 Percent. Most of the dirt in your home comes right through the front door. Eliminate it by getting a [illegible] door mat to trap dirt before it's tracked through the house.

● Use Commercial Cleaners From Janitor Supply Stores. The truth is, all cleaners are the same. So save money by buying the stuff the professionals use at far lower prices than the household products.

● Fire Up An Fan Go. Don't wait to do your cleaning until your house is a mess. Put things away as you use them. It sounds simple, but if you and your family stop messing up the house in the first place, you'll find you only have an hour's work when cleaning day rolls around. Another tip — clean house like under the sofa only every few weeks.

He does favor for friend by shooting her!

Nathaniel M. Kelly, 20, was sentenced to 25 years in prison for shooting and killing a married friend — as a favor to the victim!

Kelly pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in the shooting of lifelong friend Kelly Ann Worden, 21, in Laurel, Md.

"The best guess I have is he did it to do her a favor," said prosecutor A. Thomas Kirkpatrick.

"They were good friends, they had grown up together and I guess he wanted to help her.

"She said to her friends she wanted to die, and she wished someone would kill her. The defendant, Mr. Kelly, got up and said 'I'll do it.'"

Miss Worden was found shot to death a short time later, the prosecutor said.

Scared passenger jumps from speeding car — then gets run over by ■ train!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A motorist was sentenced to 10 years in prison because a terrified teenage girl panicked — and jumped to her death from his speeding car.

By LAUREL BOWIT

Gifted Gina Caretti is a super psychic who can read an animal's mind like a book — and she says the lowly pig is the purest thinker on Earth!

"The pig is a saint who thinks nothing but wholesome — almost holy — thoughts," grandma Gina, 68, told reporters in Florence, Italy.

"No other animal in the world, including the human, comes close to such piety.

And the pig is smart.

"Believe it or not, pigs actually are known to ponder the meaning of life."

But the house pig has all sensible intelligence that makes it much smarter than all the other animals, the 68-year-old beauty told reporters.

And no one who has watched the talented telepathist at work can have any doubt she can peer into an animal's mind and read its innermost thoughts.

I have taken [illegible] a bunch of my pets to her over the years — everything from snakes to rats — and she has never failed to help them and the [illegible] a flattering performance.

Animal lovers are up in arms over the recipes in a mind-blowing new book — The Eat Your Own Pet Cookbook.

Publisher Roger Hammond insists that the book, which features recipes like rat in a basket d'hirondelle chili rib lover and ferret flambe, is "tongue-in cheek and definitely not to be taken seriously."

Experts baffled by horrifying discovery

Human skeletons and boat found inside whale's belly!

By MARTIN STACY

The crew of a Japanese fishing vessel sliced open a blue whale in the North Atlantic and found six human skeletons inside!

"It was horrifying," Capt. Akira Suzuki told a group of reporters at his quarters.

"The skeletons were almost totally intact and there were actually shreds of clothing and pieces of a wooden boat in the whale's belly with them.

"The boat obviously swallowed an entire small boat and got the men along with it."

Japanese authorities were baffled by the discovery because blue whales, which grow to lengths of 100 feet, are not known to be dangerous to man.

Ogata Yoshida, a Tokyo marine biologist, theorized that the whale swallowed the men and their boat by accident.

"For all its enormity, the blue whale feeds exclusively on the tiny marine animal, krill," said the expert.

"But men and most boats are so small in comparison to the size of the whale that it might easily have continued these without meaning to," he said.

Authorities have yet to identify the remains of the men that were removed from the whale's body and doubt that they ever will.

"These past deeds could have come from anywhere," said one official.

Molasses sea engulfs town

An explosion at a sugar factory sent a gooey wave of molasses 10 feet high surging through a small town in Nebraska.

One worker was swept 100 feet out of the factory and trudged through the syrupy sea to rescue other employees from the sticky scene in Gering.

No one was seriously hurt, although the sugar factory's office-lab looked "as if someone had slapped on a pop can, just splashed it about," according to a sheriff's deputy.

U.S. marshals load roly-poly drug dealer Edwin Roberts into a special plane for trip to prison

Wide-body prisoner has to travel in a [illegible]

Govt. spends $5G to move 800-lb. con!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Putting roly-poly, 800-pound drug dealer Edwin Roberts behind prison bars was a costly pain in the neck to the feds — who had to rent a Learjet to do it.

The blubbery prisoner is so fat he can't walk, can't fit in a normal car, can't sit in a regular airplane seat and can't even be put in a regular jail cell because the door isn't wide enough.

[illegible]

Roberts, 41, began his trip to the federal prison hospital in Springfield, Mo., tied on a stretcher in the rear of a U.S. Marshals ambulance.

Roberts is too big to walk and can't get through the door of a normal airplane," he said.

"He's not only fat, he's sick," said Marshals spokesman [illegible]. "He's on a special diet and has 24 hours a day. All that weight is causing serious stress on his heart."

The 800-pound blob was hoisted into a special medical helicopter by a mechanical lift and flown the 400 miles to Springfield.

A [illegible] was on hand with all the gear.

It cost $5,000 to fly the fat man," said Marshal [illegible].

'Naked Saint' reveals all in bizarre murder trial!

A beauty worshiped as the "Naked Saint" by her disciples stunned the judge at her murder trial — when she strolled into the courtroom in her birthday suit.

And when guards threw a shawl around the withery beauty, she began trembling blood as green bile poured from her ears and eyes.

Woman's hair explodes in flames as she waits for a bus!

By PETE COOKE

A woman filed a federal lawsuit against the maker of two beauty products she blames for injuries she suffered when her hair burst into flames while she was waiting for a bus on a hot day.

Miss Sims, 34, was standing on a corner in Columbia, S.C., when the bizarre incident occurred last May.

"Her head just spontaneously ignited," said Marcus Whitlock, the attorney for Miss Sims.

"It seems so crazy that this could happen, but one of the witnesses was a policeman who saw the whole thing and put out the flames with his coat."

According to Whitlock, Miss Sims used Bonnie's Curl Rejuvenator and Donna's Curl and Wave Rejuvenator on her hair before leaving home in the morning to go to the University of South Carolina where she is employed as a housekeeper.

Miss Sims' hair went up in flames at about 4:30 in the afternoon as she waited for a bus.

"She doesn't smoke and no one around her was smoking," said Whitlock. "The weather that day was fit as the newspaper said it is always hotter in town. She said she started to feel hot and then burst into flames."

Before the nearby parking meter could put out the fire, it burned off all Miss Sims' hair, burned her forehead, neck and back and ignited her clothing, said Whitlock. Miss Sims was rushed by ambulance to Richland Memorial Hospital where she was treated by burn specialists. Whitlock said his client will soon undergo plastic surgery to repair some of the damage.

Whitlock said the hair care products Miss Sims used contain glycerine, a flammable substance.

The lawsuit calls the beauty products "unfit for human use, defective and unreasonably dangerous because when used as a conditioner, hair they can cause non-flame spontaneously due to the glycerine contained in them."

The attorney added that the products bear no warning labels about the dangers of warm hair catching fire.

"The whole thing is that she just put them on her head, both products, and — it was a hot day that day — and her head just spontaneously combusted," said Whitlock.

Beauty products to blame, says badly burned victim

Secret chants to bring you money, love, health and happiness!

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Your dreams can come true simply by chanting a few magic words that are guaranteed to bring you money, love, health and happiness!

"The chants were found in the ruins of an ancient Tibetan monastery by [illegible] theologist from Nanchang, China, late last year.

Since then thousands of Chinese have tried the ancient old chants and found that they actually produce results.

"The chants had been handed down for generations from mouth to mouth long before the old Tibetan monastery was abandoned in the year 1911," said the archeologist, Chi Tsung-sen of the University of Kiangsi. "The ancient incantations were written on stone slabs buried in the altar room of the mountain religious center.

"Along with the chants, we found scrolls and paintings illustrating hundreds of incidents in which the old forty-lips had worked miracles for the monks.

"Now we are testing them in modern times — and finding that they are incredibly effective."

'Fantastic Voyage' comes true!

Tiny robot doctor will travel through body to treat disease

Japanese scientists are making a tiny robot doctor that can treat diseases from inside the body — just like the microscopic submarine that appeared in the 1966 sci-fi flick, Fantastic Voyage!

"Researchers for many years have sent probes to study the oceans and outer space. We hope to be able to study the inner world," Iwao Fujimasa, of Tokyo University's Research Center for Advanced Science and Technology, told reporters.

The scientists' goal is to design and build a robot doctor that is small enough to travel through veins and inside organs to treat diseases in their source.

The device would carry a microscope, TV camera and transmitter to keep doctors abreast of its precise location within the body.

It would also have to be equipped with a microscopic motor, power source, cutting tool and storage compartment to enable it to roll or otherwise treat diseased tissue, Dr. Fujimasa said.

These specifications would require components that are a mind-blowing 1,000 times smaller than those currently available. But the Japanese expect that in collaboration with IBM they can have a working model of the robot within two years.

The robot doc could potentially save thousands of lives every year by slashing the need for surgery of all types, they said.

Little boys set coffin on fire

[illegible] two 8-year-old [illegible] and their friend, 10, dragged [illegible] into a funeral home and set a coffin afire, cops said.

The bad kids were from Shropshire, England. They were charged but couldn't be arrested because they were too young, a spokesman for the police said.

Arrested on rape, the three brothers admitted they'd entered the funeral parlor, lifted an empty coffin from its resting place and then set it afire. No one knows why they did it.

Spoiled newlyweds split up quick

Many young married [illegible] are breaking up quicker than ever because they are spoiled brats who were raised to [illegible] and fast by their mothers.

They are not prepared to deal with less than perfect partnerships and aren't prepared for the harshness of marriage, according to a new survey by marriage counselors.

"Young people have a high expectation of life today," said Sue Ward, counselor for a Hurricane guidance group called Relate.

"If they don't get instant satisfaction they do something about it. If their partnership isn't equal, they get out and find a new mate."

Prehistoric 'butcher bird' slaughters jungle settlers!

Scores of jungle settlers have been dragged screaming from their beds to be clawed to shreds and eaten alive — by a 30-foot-tall "butcher bird" that reigned over the dinosaurs many millions of years ago!

ARTIST'S conception of the deadly 30-foot-tall "butcher bird." The man's silhouette at the lower left shows how the monster dwarfs its helpless human victims.

The extraordinary prehistoric creature was described as having a hawk-like head larger than that of a horse and a hooked beak that can snap a man in half with a single bite.

"It is huge, but it runs with great speed," declared Arturo Cardenas, a settler in the Santa Cruz territory of southern Argentina and the only person known to have survived the butcher bird's attack.

"When it crashed out of the jungle after me, I thought I was a dead man," Cardenas said. "But I fell into an old termite nest that covered me and kept me hidden."

Cardenas is one of several hundred sheep herders who received federal land grants to clear the jungle.

But in recent weeks more than 50 of the settlers have been horribly slaughtered by the flightless monster.

"The butcher bird existed throughout South America and in the north in Florida about 40 million years ago," said Dr. Venancio Fernandez, Argentina's leading expert on the dinosaurian beast.

"It was without question one of the [illegible] creatures that has ever roamed the Earth. It kills just for the sake of killing."

Dr. Fernandez said it is not impossible that the huge bird — or its close relative — could have survived.

Pedro Dolores is one of a half-dozen settlers who has witnessed one of the butcher bird's horrifying slaughters.

"I saw it charge out of the jungle and attack the wife of my neighbor," he said. "The bird knocked her down, then snatched her up in its beak and snapped her in half.

"Then it spit her out and pounded off into the jungle.

"I will never forget that poor woman's screams of agony as she died."

At Dr. Fernandez's urging professional hunters have been sent into the territory in hopes of capturing the creature alive.

"But federal troops with helicopters have also been sent in," he said.

"To prevent the loss of more lives, they're prepared to blow the prehistoric creature off the face of the Earth once and for all."

ARIES

Mar. 21-Apr. 19

You are filled with optimism as career plans fall into place, and you can see the results of your devoted time and hard work.

Midweek, a family member has physical problems that may require extra consideration and guidance from you. This may include performing household chores that are ordinarily out of your realm.

Romance may bloom for some singles, when a chance encounter intrigues a really sensational person into your personal life.

TAURUS

Apr. 20-May 20

Stay in criminal confusion, some duty acquaintance could entangle this week. When the stars are moving erratically, there is nothing to do but wait until the atmosphere clears.

Fortunately, this is a minor storm, and before you know it, your world will return to normal.

Marrieds who are looking foolish would be wise to treat lightly during this monotonous time in order to avoid misunderstandings with spouse and other family members.

GEMINI

May 21-June 20

A helpful relative inconvenes you to see who can give you the assistance you need to move ahead in your career. Be wary of a jealous coworker who is anxious and ready to point out any mistake on your part.

Some male Pisces may look for work to bumping into an old buddy from high school or college days.

There's a potentially inflammatory situation with your loved one unless you remember to include her or him in weekend plans.

CANCER

June 21-July 22

You begin the week in a new area of your career.

Don't expect too much too soon, as it will take time to settle in and learn the routine.

Unfortunately, you have not as an important business rendezvous and may have to restrict privileges of teenage children who are monopolizing the telephone.

Weekend outings and entertaining visiting out-of-state friends put a drain on your finances. But an enjoyable time is had by all.

LEO

July 23-Aug. 22

Your week gets off to a bad start because of mechanical problems with your automobile. The necessary repairs play havoc with the budget.

Your cranky mood disturbs your sweetheart routine. You find it difficult to hold your temper in order to maintain the peace.

Take heart. The feelings of rejection that seem to be coloring your world will be lifted over the weekend, when you have a major time with friends at a neighborhood party.

VIRGO

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Someone close to you mistook and treated as a confidant proves to be an enemy by revealing incidents from your past that you had wanted kept secret. Focus on maintaining your dignity, remain cool and by the weekend everyone will have forgotten the incident.

Midweek, several pleasant social occasions provide relaxation and improve your outlook.

LIBRA

Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Lack of communication causes conflict with your mate for most of the week. Slow down, Libra, and arrange your time so that you can talk out existing problems and hopefully resolve them.

Midweek finds you super critical of a co-worker's personal life. Keep in mind that it is none of your business, and control your impulse to comment verbally.

Luck is with you at week's end in both participative sports and games of chance.

SCORPIO

Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Your work situation has improved, with recognition coming from colleagues as well as those in authority.

You can expect some emotional fireworks while trying to get papers together that are essential for filing income tax return. Make it difficult to deal with, but later you'll both laugh about the confusion.

Your desire to resolve the problems with the co-worker may find you on a plane headed for a warmer climate.

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

The lucky position presents an auspicious time for literary Sagittarians to submit articles for publication, make progress on unfinished manuscripts or begin new works.

Male Archers may be frustrated when dealing with women this week. Is business as well as in the home. Flexibility as well as flattery will get the desired results.

CAPRICORN

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

This week begins a period of revitalization and growth for your earth sign. It's a time to put aside unfulfilled plans and dreams and get on with your life.

Your career as well as your personal relationships may take on new direction, with surprising results. Aries and Cancer will figure prominently.

Minor health problems interfere with weekend socializing, and may require professional advice after home remedies fail to give relief.

If your birthday is this week . . .

Stability and security mark the coming year.

There'll be no big moves or promotions in sight at work. But you'll be given recognition and pats on the back with a promise for advancement in the years to come.

Life with your mate will be serene and warm. Singles looking for fiery passion will be disappointed. But warmth and true affection will be available.

Holidays provide relaxation and healthy fun. Look for a new wearing white shoes and a matching belt to

AQUARIUS

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

The arrival of good financial news at the beginning of the week puts you off to a cheerful start and ready to take on the world.

Midweek, you may have difficulty being supportive when your mate is in conflict with an ex-spouse over children, finances and other unresolved problems. Keep a tight rein on your temper.

Travel is highlighted for Aquarians during this period, but a vacation taken at this time will be one

PISCES

Feb. 19-Mar. 20

A favorable time for the sky fish to approach higher-ups for salary increases, and ask for reasonable changes in working hours and conditions. You've been returning along, drifting with the currents for too long. The time has come to plot your own course.

Members of your immediate family, especially children, act up during the week, quarreling over TV and chores.

Miracle healer cures the sick — with his body odor!

By HENRY WEBER

An Indian holy man has cured everything from heart disease to cancer with the sweet-smelling odor that wafts out from under his arms!

"It's true," Dr. Jayanti Manuar who has studied the guru extensively told reporters in Calcutta. "The guru Dadaji has miraculous powers. He can cure anything with the sweet fragrance from his body.

"Even people who are terminally ill with heart disease and cancer respond instantly to the smell.

"I still don't understand the secret of his healing body odor or take any credit for myself over the miracles that occur.

"All glory belongs to the guru," he said. "I do nothing myself. They alone are responsible for the cures."

Dadaji's healing career began by accident 38 years ago in 1944. According to published reports, he was visiting a hungarial's cancer ward when he suddenly began sweating and developed a strong, pleasant-like smell.

"As I walked through the ward I noticed the aroma coming from under my arms and thought that it was the sweetest fragrance I had ever smelled," said Dadaji.

WIFE DUMPS DREAM HUBBY!

. . . for being too perfect

By ALAN PETERS

Heidi Schmidt thought she'd found the perfect man when she married Hans, but after two years she's divorcing her "dream husband" because he does the cooking, the cleaning and the shopping — and he's driving her nuts!

"Hans really is the perfect husband," Heidi told Judge Karl Schmitt in the couple's divorce case in the East German town of Luckbach.

"He does everything perfectly," the 23-year-old housewife complained.

"Hans does all of the cooking and the baking. He does the shopping and the dishes. He does the housecleaning and even washes the windows.

"The last straw came when Hans took over the job of taking care of our baby. I really couldn't allow that kind of thing to go on."

Heidi told the judge that when she met and married Hans, a 26-year-old accountant, she thought he was Mr. Wonderful.

"I was delighted when Hans wanted me to quit my factory job and stay at home and be a housewife," she said.

"From the very start Hans waited on me hand and foot. I thought that I had married the world's most perfect husband."

Heidi said she believed Hans would stop pestering all of the housework chores because he was happy to do them when his wife was pregnant.

"But I was very disappointed when Hans refused to help me around the house after our baby was born," she told the judge.

"I admit that I did all the cooking and only because I'm a much better cook than she ever will be.

"And if I didn't do the cleaning and the shopping and didn't take care of our little baby girl it wouldn't have gotten done."

Besides Hans' total failure to be the household slave he was supposed to be, Heidi complained that her husband refused to take care of his father and two younger brothers.

"I never set out to become a perfect husband," Hans testified.

"That sure isn't my goal in life. But when his mother died, the job of taking care of the house and the family fell to the eldest child — me, the eldest child."

Hans' courtroom display of tears broke Heidi's resolve to quit her job before they got divorced, but he said he had expected her to run the household.

"The final straw she crushed me as she returned from her honeymoon and a week with her mother," Hans said. "I couldn't believe she actually called it quits!

"We both laughed at that, but after she ruined the second dinner and the third and the fourth, I started doing the cooking.

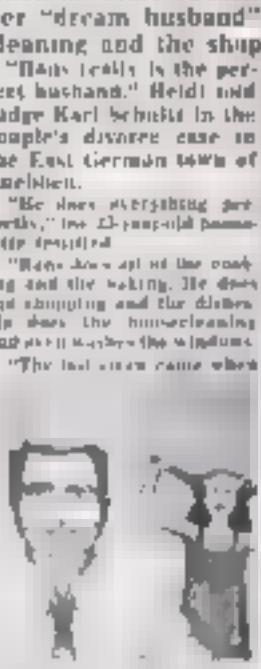
"I was losing the man of my dreams."

Judge Schmitt granted the couple a divorce and awarded custody of the baby to Hans.

The housewife-hubby was delighted.

"You may not be the perfect husband," the judge told him.

"But I think you'll make a fine mother."



With "dream husband" Hans, Heidi Schmidt packing for her trip

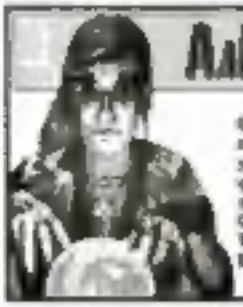
If I sleep in his bed will he put a car in my driveway?



Ask the Countess

Countess Sophia Sobek offers NEWS readers personal advice based on your horoscope. For answers to brief questions about your future, include your date of birth. Address letters to Countess Sophia Sobek, Weekly World News, 600 S. East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Dear Countess Sobek: I'm a married woman who was born on Jan. 16, 1971, and I got a real problem.

I know this man through a friend of mine and this man owns an auto dealership. He told my friend to tell me that he'd give me a brand new convertible if I'll go to bed with him.

Well, I met this man and I told I only liked white or red convertibles, but he said, "Well, that choice will be up to me, it depends on what colors we have at the dealership."

Now, maybe he was lying because it's one of the biggest dealerships in Iowa and I drove past there with my friend and I saw red and white convertibles and other colors.

Well, I met this man again and I said "I see the color I want in your lot," and he said, "The color is still up to me."

As you can see, Countess, I got a real problem. Dare I trust this man? If I sleep with him, will I get the color I want or will he give me something else? I'm so confused.

Also, what will my husband say when he sees a new convertible in our driveway? He might suspect something, on account of how we have no money. Please answer right away. I really want that car if it's white or red. — Not Very Trusting in Georgia

Dear Not Very Trusting: I do not see a new car in your driveway any time soon, but I do see the dark clouds of marital discord looming on the horizon. Then our dealer will sue and since you and you'll never get the reward he promised.

Stay faithful to your husband, my dear, and save for that new convertible you want so much. It will be yours soon.

★ ★ ★

Dear Countess Sobek: For the past five years my husband and I have suffered one financial hardship after another. We make an effort to get our debts caught up, make payments on time, and whamo! we're hit with another expense.

Something is always breaking down or tearing up, which puts us behind instead of ahead. We can't seem to save any money or fix up the house.

I'm tired of hand-me-downs, used furniture and ones that shrivel and dilate us to death.

We have a beautiful 1-year-old son whom I adore with all my heart. More than anything, I want to give him a better life than the one we're living.

I was born 8/15/48. Do you see anything in our future which will change our financial picture, and keep hell collectors from our door? — Bills to the Gills in Kentucky

Dear Bill: There are major cosmic changes about to take place in your sign which will influence the disadvantaged for a financial outlook.

Expect new job offers to surface, one which will be an opportunity for self-employment.

Your intuition will be at a high level so you can trust your instincts when making decisions.

Dear Countess Sobek: I have fallen and broken my tailbone three times. The last time was in 1990 and was another event in the continuing saga of health problems that have plagued me all of my life.

I also was abused as a child and am currently writing a book about that part of my life.

Can you look into my future and tell me if my application for disability benefits will be successful and if my book will ever be published? Birth date 1/17/41. — F.H. in Mississippi

Dear F.H.: This year and next your promise a series of positive events for the January born Capricorn.

Granted, the past few years have been anything but peaceful, but you'll be surprised at how quickly things are going to change in your favor.

★ ★ ★

Dear Countess Sobek: In 1984, I built a nightclub that my boss at what turned out to be landlocked property. My bosses, who owned the adjacent property, refused to let us build an access road the customers to get to and out, so the venture failed.

Then I opened a beautiful little shop, and have had only three or four customers a week. More bad luck! What is my problem? My birth date is 10/25/42. — R.W. in Alabama

Dear R.W.: There is that group of Libraens for whom the cruise people don't believe in business workers like those you've already tried.

However, I urge you to keep experimenting with ideas, because I do foresee a golden opportunity for you in 1995.

★ ★ ★

Dear Countess Sobek: Every time I break or wash my hair great gobs of it fall out. I'm afraid that I'm going to be bald.

Do you know why this is happening, and can you tell me what to do about it? Birth date 3/1/35. — M.S. in California

Dear M.S.: Unpredictable Uranus has been causing some unpleasant influences in your sign, and you should be paying close attention to health matters, especially diet.

★ ★ ★

Dear Countess Sobek: Please advise me on the future of our local little theatre group which I founded and am still involved with as director.

I've worked hard to keep this company intact, but because of the personal problems of many of the cast members, we have had to cancel four months of productions.

Can you tell me what you see in my future? I was born 7/5/18. — H.B. in New York

Dear H.B.: Present celestial developments in Cancer's sign should help you to sort out some of your production company's current problems.

Also, be open to someone who will propose a bold new idea, a new outlet for your talents, as it may be the key to the success you've been looking for.

THERE'S a lot of love in the Evans family! Shown here, baby Kate is hugged by her brothers Ashley (left) and Bradley (right)

Baby was doomed to die!

Miracle tot cheats death — 3 times!

Doctors predicted little Kate Evans would be deaf, blind and mentally retarded — but the cute little wonder kid proved them wrong.

Bright-eyed baby Kate is fit as a fiddle despite medical problems that would have defeated most tots. She was born 4 months premature, suffered from terminal palsy and "died" three times in her first year of life.

Twice she was hospitalized with serious infections and last August she underwent surgery on her stomach. Yet today, 12 months after her birth, she is completely healthy.

"We call her our little miracle," said the child's mother, Teresa, who lives in Aberteidwr, Wales. "She has a tremendous will to be better."

Teresa credits Kate's older brothers Ashley, 3, and Bradley, 4, with having helped cure the baby by getting well by playing with her continually. She says the boys' games kept Kate alert and interested in the world around her when she might otherwise have given in to pain and depression. Little Kate's progress has stunned doctors, who warned Teresa her daughter would die shortly after birth. When the baby not only survived, but developed the ability to see and hear, new hope arose for her future.

Although everyone expected the infant to be mentally or physically handicapped, her desperate battle for life served to make her stronger. Today, she is already taking her first few stumbling steps. With regular physical therapy, she has lost all signs of problems with coordinating her arms and legs.

She is alert, happy — and normal in every way.

"We can't believe our good fortune in having a little girl who went through all that Kate did and came out so healthy," said Kate's father Mark, 24.

"She must have a very special purpose in life."

Space probe sends OLD WEST

SOVIET scientists have been sending unmanned probes to Venus since the 1960s. Artist's conception shows a Soviet 6 spacecraft, similar to the one which recently orbited the mysterious planet.

Tubby hubby sues his wife — for being too good a cook!

A grossly overweight man has filed a huge lawsuit against his wife — blaming her good cooking for his condition!

"I love my wife, but, say she is killing me," said Pedro Martinez after filing his unusual suit in Cordoba, Spain.

Jose Rubio, Martinez' attorney, said his 350-pound client has been forced to quit his job as a truck driver because of a heart condition brought on by excessive weight.

Rubio explained that although Martinez' wife, Teresa, is named as a defendant in the lawsuit, the real target of the legal action is the couple's insurance company.

"Mr. Martinez lost his health insurance coverage when he lost his job," Rubio said. "Now he finds himself out of work and facing the prospect of [illegible] results does have homeowner's insurance and we intend to make them pay all."

In order to force the insurance company to pay a claim under the couple's homeowner's policy, attorney Rubio said Martinez must prove his condition was caused by his wife.

"We intend to show that Mrs. Martinez is a wonderful cook," the lawyer said. "We also intend to show that she was negligent in preparing foods extremely high in calories and fat even though her poor husband was considerably overweight.

"Mrs. Martinez knew or should have known the likely consequences of her actions, however, until investigated, we Rubio Martinez, 33, said that after 12 years of marriage he had second thoughts about suing his wife, but couldn't find any other way out of the family's financial dilemma.

"I love Teresa and didn't want to do this, but it is for the best," he said. "My doctors all say it's true that if Teresa wasn't such a good cook, I wouldn't be in such bad shape now."

Mrs. Martinez admitted being hurt and angry when she first heard about the lawsuit from her husband, but says she has gradually accepted the idea.

"For 12 years I have never heard his complaints about my cooking and now they blame me for everything," she said.

"I'll go along with this court case if I have to, but my husband is going to do his own cooking from now on."

TOWN FOUND ON VENUS!

By XAVIER DUNN

A Soviet space probe has photographed a Wild West town complete with horses, wagons and people on the surface of Venus, stunned scientists report.

"There is life on Venus — human life — and we have absolutely no explanation for it," Dr. Yury Srednev, the Soviet space scientist, told reporters in Moscow.

"Photographs beamed back to Earth show that the town is situated in the middle of a Venusian desert and is typical of those that were built in the American West in the 1880s.

"Surface temperatures on Venus are in the 900 degree range and the atmosphere is laden with sulphuric acid. But the town appears to be constructed of ordinary wood.

"And the people and horses there are definitely thriving even though the planet is airless."

The Soviet report stunned scientists, especially those in the West. Ralph Lasrent, the French physicist, called the discovery of a town and life on Venus "the scientific scoop of modern times."

American experts agreed but were tight-lipped, even after seeing copies of Soviet photographs that clearly show a Wild West town — resembling Dodge City from the 1880s, with cowboys, horses and wagons — on the planet's surface.

Scientists stunned at shocking pix of buildings, horses — and people!

"The possibility that the pictures were faked does exist," said one U.S. space official. "But the Soviets have nothing to gain by perpetrating a hoax.

"Even if they did, it seems highly unlikely that they would use an American-style town rather than a Soviet city or village.

"This is like something out of the Twilight Zone," he added. Dr. Srednev refused to discuss the mission of the probe in detail but he did confirm that it was the latest in a series of Soviet probes that have photographed Venus since the 1960s.

He also declined to comment on speculation that the town was built by extraterrestrials who visited the American West in the 19th century or intercepted a television signal that showed what Wild West towns looked like.

It is not clear when — or if — the Soviets will send their next probe to Venus. But Simon Drost, the Dutch UFO expert, called on the Americans and Soviets to pool their knowledge, equipment and resources and get one there fast.

"We've got to find out what that town is doing on Venus," said Drost. "It is not the kind of knowledge we can live without."

My name is John Wright. You are looking at it on the letter. I was $30,000 in debt. The bank repossessed my car because I couldn't keep up with the payments. And we can date the weekend gave me an eviction notice because I hadn't paid the rent for four months. So we had to move out. My family and I stayed at my parents' place for the rest of that month before I could manage to get another apartment. That was very embarrassing.

Things have changed now. I own nine homes in Southern California. The rest I'm living in now in Beverly Hills is worth more than one million dollars. I own several cars, among them a Rolls Royce Silverado and a Ferrari twin Cadillac. Right now I have a million dollars that of stuff with the bank and have an [illegible] in my bank in Beverly Hills.

But first of all, I have chosen how I live. To be me. To do what I want a week when I want a day, the rest of the day. I do things that please me. Many days I go shopping and eating — shopping, other days. I play racquetball or water basketball. Friends. I go to my office (the one with a pool table). I have a very long weekend. I just get back from a very exciting trip — West, Hawaii.

I'm not really trying to impress you with my wealth. All I'm trying to do is to prove to you that it won't be hard for you, once I can help enough so that you can live enough to feel like this. I will tell you how I got past to how to look backward. It was not a straight-line journey where I could just sit back and become wealthy. Who knew what would have happened to my family and me.

Knowing about the secret changed my life completely. It brought me wealth, happiness, and many successes of all — peace of mind. The secret will change your life, too! It will give you everything you need and will solve all your money problems. Of course you don't have to take my word for it. You can try it for yourself. To see that my secret works. I'm willing to give you $10,000 in cash. If I'm giving an address at the bottom of this page. I repeat $10,000. I get your attention. And you will prove it to yourself the amazing money secret will work for you, too!

Why, you may ask, am I willing to share this secret with you? Do make money? Really. First, I already have all the money and possessions I'll ever need. Second, my secret does not involve any sort of complicated schemes. Third, working is more satisfying to me than showing my secret only with those who make a positive commitment and are willing to work!

The secret is incredibly simple. Anyone can use it. You can get started with practically no money at all and the risk is almost zero. You don't need special training or even a high school education. It doesn't matter how young or old you are and it will work for you no matter or even what you do or wanted.

Let me tell you more about this fascinating money-making secret.

With the secret the doors can roll in fast. In some cases you have to be able to work at least overnight. If you are very bullish people underestimate how they can get started in a single afternoon and it is possible to have spendable money in your hands the very next morning. In fact, the first night in the Federal Angel way to make money that has ever been invented!

It's in a very safe way to go from cash. It is practically risk free. It is not a dangerous gamble. Everything you do has already been tested and you are guaranteed for a right on the room.

One of the great things about this whole idea is that you can do it in bed in your own way. You don't need resources or an office. It doesn't matter where you live either. You can use the secret to make money if you live in Long Beach or in a foreign or exotic environment. A husband and wife team may very well be the most successful at home at their own pace, and work hot side to side.

This secret is simple. I want to make to make a statement at this point. You don't need a college degree or even a high school education. All you need is a little common sense and the ability to follow simple, step-by-step instructions. I personally know a man from New England who used the secret and made $1 million in just 3 weeks.

You can use the secret to make money no matter how old or how young you may be. There is no reason why [illegible] should not be successful. I don't care whether you're a man or a woman. I know one woman who is over 65 and is making all the money she needs with the secret.

When you use the secret to make money you never have to go to interview anybody or anything. You can do nothing at all with face-to-face selling, telephone solicitations, real estate or anything else that involves personal contact.

Everything about the plan is perfectly legal and honest. You will be proud of what you are doing and you will be performing a very valuable service.

It will take only two hours to look this to you the world. After that everything is almost automatic. After you get started you can probably do everything that is necessary in three hours per week.
